A Sustainable World of Play

We all have one thing in common — Planet Earth! This is why it's so important that we think intentionally about our actions. Each decision we make environmentally and socially has the capacity to impact other people. What if we all chose to live in a way that honored this truth?

At PlanToys, sustainability is a very familiar concept. We've been operating in an eco-friendly way for 40 years now! With an enduring mission to help nurture Better Kids for a Better World, we developed three pillars of sustainability that pave the path for our planet-friendly operations — Sustainable Play, Sustainable Way and Sustainable World.

Sustainable PLAY

Sustainable WORLD

PlanToys Products and Services

We're committed to creating toys and experiences that support a child's development while nurturing their self-esteem, relationship with nature, and outlook on life.

In 1981, PlanToys' founder Vitool Viraponsavan started PlanToys with a deep desire to change the world for the better. He believed the best way to do so was by supporting children in their learning and play environments! In doing this, his hope was that society at large would benefit because children would be supported throughout each developmental stage with sustainable toys that emphasized eco-friendly living and strengthened foundational skills.

By playing a role in early developmental years, we believe that we have the chance to impact children's lives in the long term and help them grow into individuals that value themselves, others, and the planet we call home.

PlanToys Business Operations

We pay close attention to the materials and production methods used to create our wooden toys. We also hold ourselves partially responsible for the environment and the well-being of our employees.

Quality toys reflect our intentional operations. We pay close attention to every step of our manufacturing process — including the wellbeing of our employees! For 40 years, we've only used materials and sustainable production methods that illustrate our mission of supporting children in their developmental stages, relationship with nature, and physical growth. We ensure the use of sustainable natural resources and create minimum to zero waste throughout our production process. We use reclaimed rubberwood from rubber trees that no longer produce latex to produce solid wood and plywood for toy production. We also upcycle leftover sawdust to produce PlanWood, a unique material that allows us to design toys with dynamic shapes because of its flexibility. PlanWood also made us the first toy company in the world to produce wooden toys that float on water!

PlanToys' Business Operations: Eco-friendly and Non-toxic Materials, International Safety Standards, World-class Quality of Products and Services Certification, Safety and Health Standards for Office and Factory Employees, Eco-Efficient Manufacturing, Renewable Energy, Eco-Design, Happy Organization

PlanToys Social Contribution

A world with abundant natural resources, healthy ecosystems, and families living joyful, quality lives is the kind of world we want to live in! For 40 years, we've participated in various projects to help make this a reality.

Our efforts begin within our organization, extend to our stakeholders, reach our communities, and finally impact society at large. They include exhibitions, online activities, downloadable content, environmental actions, donations, unique partnerships and more that — we believe — ultimately support the entire planet!

Although our impact may appear small through an outside lens, we know that every developmental play opportunity, educational learning experience, and eco-friendly improvement made to our operations or curated by our team has the potential to support children, family, society and heal our planet in the long run. If we can help create a better world for our kids and the generations to come — even slightly — then we have fulfilled our mission.
